This month holds our celebration of Pentecost and our title Sunday. Rather than consider their place in our faith, let me share some Memorial Day thoughts in the light of Bishop Miller's letter which you will find on page six. This year we are observing the 150th anniversary of the onset of the War Between the States, which forged us as a nation. As Shelby Foote said in the Ken Burns' PBS Civil War series, before the War, we said, "the United States are"; following the War we said, "the United States is."

Should you find yourself in Michigan on Memorial Day weekend, you should plan to be in the town of Pentwater on Lake Michigan. In the winter, the population of Pentwater is smaller than Mineral Point. However it is a summer resort area, and by Memorial Day, the population swells to many thousands. The elementary school band leads the Memorial Day parade, then various floats, the Boy Scouts carry a large flag, the VFW has a WWII jeep and a trailer for the veterans, and the high school band brings up the rear, marching through the center of town to the marina.

There, the bands and the crowd move to the lawn, where we have a prayer, short address, and the Coast Guard boat goes to the center of the channel for the laying of a wreath honoring those who died at sea, marked by Taps. Then the bands form up on the street, and proceed to the City Park for the second ceremony, prayer, longer address, a couple of numbers by the bands, and laying of a wreath for those who died on land, with Taps. One mark of the Pentwater observance is that all veterans in the crowd are invited to come forward, which usually fills the lawn in front of the band stand.

A smaller third ceremony, final prayers, and firing of the salute, is held at the City Cemetery. For twenty years, this was my pattern as the resident veteran prayer person. The VFW master of ceremonies, Paul Angel, and I, would hold forth, sometimes as planned, sometimes covering as needed. It only rained once in those twenty years. It was good.

One year, I was asked to speak when Michigan, like Wisconsin, was debating the question of concealed weapons. I gave the following warning, which the other clergy noted that only I, as a veteran, could give: "The weapon you keep unsecured will kill someone you love."

My friends who have weapons secure them in one place, store the bolt separately, and usually store the firing pin a third place. I remember the Time magazine of July 17, 1989, which devoted 26 pages to the 464 people killed that week by gunfire. Each year we lose 3,000 children and teens; ten times that number of adults.

As a country, as we honor those "who gave their last full measure," let us be "dedicated to the great task remaining before us," loving our neighbor as ourselves.

This free service allows you to read and research Scripture on-line—just type in the verse, key word, or passage you're looking for and Bible Gateway will find it for you in English or one of forty-four other languages.

■ Kathy Madigan writes, "I haven't had a big vacation since 1989 when I went on a cruise to the Caribbean Islands with my two best friends since the age of 12. Well, this year, my friend Jan is retiring after 35 years of teaching and she, Bev, and I are going on another cruise this June to Alaska. We fly to Spokane and then cruise for a week. I am looking forward to spending special time with these lifelong friends in a place that is so beautiful that I have never heard of anyone having a bad vacation there! They've been planning this for a year and talked me into it last November. Now that the time is coming up so quickly, I realize I will have to do a bit of shopping soon so that I have the right clothes. At least I did get my passport renewed in time! I am looking forward to some quiet scenes where I can pray and meditate in a peaceful environment. I'll let you know how it goes."

■ Thanks to Richmond Powers, we have a DVD of the one-hour documentary, "Walker Percy," that was recently shown at the Opera House (and will be on PBS this fall). It's in the bookcase in the undercroft.

■ Here in southwestern Wisconsin, the buzzing of a mosquito on a June evening, or even its bite, is little more than an annoyance. Sadly, however, in some parts of the world it can be the harbinger of a deadly disease—malaria.

Children under five are extremely vulnerable, as are pregnant women, and an estimated one to three million malaria-related deaths occur annually. (Full disclosure: Ye Ed. has first-hand knowledge of malaria, having contracted it in Texas at the age of five.)

Through the NetsforLife partnership, Episcopal Relief and Development (ERD) is working to distribute long-lasting, insecticide-treated mosquito nets in sub-Saharan Africa where the disease is endemic. Besides providing treated nets, the program also offers community-based training in the use of the nets and provides critical care to people suffering from the disease. Nets are available at the ERD website (www.er-d.org) in the Gifts for Life online store and cost $12.

■ It's time to start thinking about our December 4 Festival of Lessons and Carols! An initial planning meeting will be held at 10:00 a.m. on Saturday, June 18, at the home of Susanne Southwood. Interested parishioners are invited to attend.

Holy women, holy men

Approved at the 2009 General Assembly, the following new commemorations on the Episcopal Church calendar have been added for June.

June 4—John XXIII, Bishop of Rome, 1963. Angelo Cardinal Roncalli, an Italian cleric whose passion for social justice was formed early, was elected Pope in 1958. Although it was widely assumed that he would be nothing more than a “placeholder pope” of minor importance, he called the Second Vatican Council during the first year of his pontificate for the purpose of renewing and revitalizing the church. The work of that Council transformed not only Roman Catholics but all Christians, and its legacy continues to inspire the mission of the church among Christians of all traditions.

June 6—Ini Kopuria, Founder of the Melanesian Brotherhood, 1945. Born on Guadalcanal and schooled on Norfolk Island, he became a police officer in the Native Armed Constabulary. While recovering from an injury in 1924 he realized that only in service to Christ would his life find meaning. He took vows as the first Elder of the Melanesian Brotherhood, an Anglican order devoted to spreading the Gospel in the non-Christian areas of Melanesia, where it continues to this day.

June 7—The Pioneers of the Episcopal Anglican Church of Brazil, 1890. In 1890, two Episcopal Church missionaries, Lucien Lee Kinsolving and James Watson Morris, held the first service on Trinity Sunday in Porto Alegre, where they were joined within the year by William Cabell Brown, John Gaw Meem, and Mary Packard who joined the work. The five are considered founders of the Episcopal Anglican Church in Brazil, which achieved complete financial independence from the Episcopal Church in 1982.

June 8—Roland Allen, Mission Strategist, 1947. Born in 1868, he was an English missionary who believed that the mission work of the western churches was paternalistic and deeply rooted in colonialist values that were incompatible with the gospel. He served briefly as a parish priest before turning to research and writing on mission work and missionary methods. He raised people’s ire wherever he went, but was also praised for the clarity of his convictions. He was the catalyst for the reform of mission strategy throughout the world and today, most of his ideas seem self-evident.

June 13—Gilbert Keith Chesterton, Apologist and Writer, 1936. An intellectual giant of his day, his writing spanned fields as diverse as literary criticism, fiction and fantasy, satire, and Christian apologetics. He defended what he called “orthodoxy,” which was for him, among other things, an acknowledgement of the mystery and paradox of Christian faith in an age of increasing skepticism. His spiritual journey culminated in his conversion to the Roman Catholic Church in 1922. His work has influenced intellectual figures as diverse as Ernest Hemmingway and Dorothy L. Sayers, and he is beloved of Protestants and Catholics alike.

June 16—George Berkeley and Joseph Butler, Bishops and Theologians, 1753, 1752. Berkeley—for whom Berkeley College at Yale and the City of Berkeley are named—was a major philosopher of his time and developed the theory of immaterialism—individuals can only directly know objects by the perception of them, an idea that influenced Hume, Kant, and Schopenhauer. Once called “the greatest of all thinkers of the English Church,” his importance rests chiefly on his acute apology for orthodox Christianity against the Deistic thought prevalent in England in his time.

June 25—James Weldon Johnson, Poet, 1938. Born in 1871 in Florida, he entered Atlanta University with the express intent of using his education to further the interests of black people. In 1900 he collaborated with his brother to write “Lift Ev’ry Voice and Sing” in celebration of Abraham Lincoln’s birthday, and the song has become known as the “African American National Anthem.” His ability to bring together people of differing viewpoints toward a common vision served him well when he became an organizer for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) in 1920.

June 26—Isabel Florence Hapgood, Ecumenist and Journalist, 1929. A lifelong and faithful Episcopalian, she was a force behind ecumenical relations between Episcopalians and Russian Orthodoxy in the U.S. around the turn of the twentieth century.

June 27—Cornelius Hill, Priest and Chief Among the Oneida, 1907. Born in 1834, he was the first great Oneida chief born in Wisconsin after the U.S. government forced the tribe to move west from New York State. He spent several years at Nashotah House, where he was educated by Episcopal priests. Greatly respected by his people, he had been made an Oneida chief by the time he was in his teens. In 1874 he drafted a petition to the legislature of the State of New York calling on them to respect Oneida claims under state treaties. However, when land allotment—a policy he had strenuously opposed—became law, he turned to the church, becoming in 1903 the first Oneida to become an Episcopal priest. He saw the Christian faith as a way to help his people grapple with the profound and rapid changes that faced them, and the authority of his ordination enhanced his ability to be a bridge between the Oneida and white cultures. He is still revered by his people, and there are many shrines to him in Wisconsin.

OFFICE OF THE BISHOP

Episcopal Diocese of Milwaukee • 804 Juneau Avenue • Milwaukee, Wisconsin

Dear Friends in Christ,

Below is a copy of a letter I sent to major newspapers in our state regarding the concealed carry law before our State Legislature. As Christians we are called to choose Life and model our lives on him who is our Life, Peace, and Joy—Jesus the Christ. Our vocation in the words of the Prayer of St. Francis is to be instruments of Christ's peace. I invite you to join me in this work.

Yours in Christ,

The Rt. Rev. Steven A. Miller, Bishop

On September 11, 2001 I was serving as rector of an Episcopal congregation inside the Capital Beltway. Shortly after 9:30 a.m. on that day, I felt the ground tremble and shake. Minutes later, I learned that a plane which had struck the Pentagon caused that tremor. The next few days were days filled with both fear and sorrow, sorrow brought even closer when we learned that the mother of one of the children in my daughter's first grade class had been killed in that attack.

One of the reasons I have been proud to live in Wisconsin is because of our reasonable gun laws. They allow citizens of Wisconsin who enjoy hunting to do so and set reasonable limitations on other weapons. We do not need concealed carry. We do not need to be a state like Minnesota or North Carolina, in which wherever where you go—restaurants, hotels, and even churches—signs are posted regarding firearms. The proposed bill permitting the concealed carry of firearms before the legislature will only add to a culture of violence and fear. It will only increase the number of senseless killings we read about in this paper every day.

Christians serve the Lord, who has promised in the Scriptures to turn weapons of war into tools of agriculture. Unfortunately, in this state with a rich agricultural industry we seem to be going the other way.

The Rt. Rev. Steven Andrew Miller, Bishop
The Episcopal Diocese of Milwaukee

2011 Vestry Retreat: Challenges and opportunities . . . hopes and dreams

On Saturday, April 30, Fr. Hector and the Vestry met to reflect on the ministry, the duties, and the challenges of service on Trinity Vestry. Vestry members present: Jan Johnson, Senior Warden; Fred Bowden, Junior Warden; Claire Holland; Mark Prouty; and Susanne Southwood. Absent: Joan Faull. The meeting was facilitated by Valerie McAuliffe and Mary Ann Fraley of St. Dunstan's, Madison. We began by discussing two passages from the Bible.

Luke 9:57-62

⁵⁷ As they were walking along the road, a man said to him, "I will follow you wherever you go." ⁵⁸ Jesus replied, "Foxes have dens and birds have nests, but the Son of Man has no place to lay his head." ⁵⁹ He said to another man, "Follow me." But he replied, "Lord, first let me go and bury my father." ⁶⁰ Jesus said to him, "Let the dead bury their own dead, but you go and proclaim the kingdom of God." ⁶¹ Still another said, "I will follow you, Lord; but first let me go back and say goodbye to my family." ⁶² Jesus replied, "No one who puts a hand to the plow and looks back is fit for service in the kingdom of God."

Luke 10:1-6

¹ After this the Lord appointed seventy-two others and sent them two by two ahead of him to every town and place where he was about to go. ² He told them, "The harvest is plentiful, but the workers are few. Ask the Lord of the harvest, therefore, to send out workers into his harvest field." ³ Go! I am sending you out like lambs among wolves. ⁴ Do not take a purse or bag or sandals; and do not greet anyone on the road. ⁵ When you enter a house, first say, 'Peace to this house.' ⁶ If someone who promotes peace is there, your peace will rest on them; if not, it will return to you."

On reflection, Christ's instructions to his disciples were simple: The world is a dangerous place, so go together, take nothing with you, use your time to speak with willing listeners. Don't waste your time on chit-chat or on naysayers. As modern-day disciples, those instructions apply to us, too.

WE MAY NOT risk stoning or crucifixion, but we do risk disapproval and rejection. We also risk becoming useless as disciples when we cling to our creature comforts, our community status, our comfortable opinions and assumptions and our discomfort with talking about "religion." These are things we should not "take with us."

Who are the willing listeners in our community? Aren't they all the people with unmet spiritual needs, with unmet needs for belonging, love and acceptance, with unmet needs for caring and compassion, with unmet needs to be useful to others? Some of the willing listeners look, dress, and speak like us; many don't. We live in a community with a growing population of aging people and retirees from regional cities. Retirees are attracted by Mineral Point's quality of life and lively culture. Some come with church affiliation, some don't.

We reflected on our core values: Anglican liturgy, listening to and singing sacred music, prudent management of people and resources, community life, tolerance and curiosity, consensus building and ecumenical participation.

Looking back over our efforts for the last four or five years, some things have gone well, others not so well. Revisiting each of our core values we can see good things have happened with community involvement, with fiscal management, with communications, with the music program, and with lay ministries. Not so good with community outreach, with consensus building, with attracting new people or hanging onto them. In the next two years we must also search for a priest to succeed Fr. Hector in 2013.

There are reasons why we haven't done as well as we had hoped on some measures. The challenges are truly formidable. An aging congregation with declining energy is a big one. Finding a next generation to pick up the reins is another big one. We must also admit that we have found many excuses to avoid grappling with our challenges and must commit ourselves to do better.

LOOKING forward we see many opportunities to address the challenges.

- Search for retired or bi-vocational clergy using Mineral Point's cultural and artistic amenities to attract candidates to succeed Fr. Hector.
- Needs of the elderly. What are the needs? What can we realistically do to address them?
- Expand use of technology to include social media.
- Add an ecumenical community Easter event
- Get involved with the arts.
 - Sponsor Stained Glass Tour with Historical Society.
 - Arrange for columbarium markers made by local artisans.
 - Sponsor exhibit of religious art (robes, chalices, icons, etc.)
 - Chancel drama
 - Sponsor musical events with local musicians
- Become a collection point for contributions of shoes, coats, school lunches, diapers, food and other needs for places like We Care.

- Expand the range of BCP services and the range of the music we use.
- Run a poster campaign about Episcopal values.
- Seek out ways to tap into creative energy and the desire for involvement of community members. Go beyond our walls and our comfort zone.

Before focusing on any particular initiative we would like to hear what the congregation as a whole thinks our priorities should be. Let's think about it and discuss options during up-coming coffee hours.
